PRESS RELEASE

Bell Tower Challenge Has Nice Ring To It

Thursday 8 – Sunday 11 September www.heritageopendays.org.uk

Churches and cathedrals are being challenged to show people the ropes by bringing to life the 400-year old tradition of English-style bell ringing as part of Heritage Open Days this September. The call to the ringing world to open up 500 sites will provide a unique opportunity for ringing bands across England to share the heritage hidden inside their bell towers as well as their passion with millions of visitors who every year venture out to discover the treasures on their doorstep.

Bell ringers across the country are already signing up to take part in Challenge 500 including enthusiasts at some of the country's most significant and interesting locations such as the ringing chamber at St Peter Mancroft in Norwich. This is where the first recorded peal took place in May 1715 and where there are plans to develop a ringing heritage and teaching centre.

The tradition of change ringing is a unique form of music peculiar to England. Instead of 'tunes' the bells ring in orderly sequences that the ringers learn as patterns and then ring from memory. Ringers control the bell with a rope, while the bell turns full circle, mounted on a wheel. Famous people who are reported to have rung bells include comedians Victoria Wood, Jo Brand and Timmy Mallett, gardener Alan Titchmarsh and entertainer and writer Frank Muir.

In addition to the Challenge 500 ringers are invited to come together to create a collective bell ringing moment as part of the festival on Thursday 8th September between 1800 – 1900 hours.

Loyd Grossman, Patron of Heritage Open Days, said: "Heritage Open Days provides the perfect opportunity to join together to bring to life the four-hundred year old tradition of English-style bell ringing for a huge audience. We are keen to recruit churches and cathedrals to become involved in the festival by registering an event for visitors to discover their bell towers and to take part in hands on demonstrations."

Chris Mew, President of the Central Council of Church Bell Ringers, said: "We are excited that bell ringers will join this annual celebration of our cultural treasures. There are 5,000 bell towers for change ringing and our challenge is to unlock the doors to 500 of them. What's more, some visitors may be able to see the bells, often locked away over our heads, discover our ringing forebears' achievements recorded on peal boards, learn about bell ringing and maybe have a go themselves."

In partnership with

Clara Govier, Head of Charities at People's Postcode Lottery, said: "Ringing out the bells over Heritage Open Days is a great way to bring people's attention to the cultural and historical significance of bell ringing and its preservation. We are excited that millions of visitors will be able to discover the hidden history of bell towers in churches and cathedrals which will be free to access over four days."

To take part in the challenge and to be counted, bell towers need to register with Heritage Open Days by 1st August 2016. By registering, all participants will be able to access a free marketing support pack and their event will be listed at www.heritageopendays.org.uk from mid-July. CHALLENGE 500 EARLY REGISTERED HIGHLIGHTS

A selection of some of the bell tower events registered at the time of going to press.

Winterbourne Medieval Barn, Lichfield

All other surviving medieval great tithed barns were built by the monastic estates, universities, or the Knights Hospitallers, but Winterbourne Barn was built by Thomas de Bradeston in 1342, just a few years before the Black Death first hit in England. In addition to touring the Barn and its grounds you can try your hand at bell ringing using the Lichfield Diocesan Mobile Belfry. The Belfry contains an excellent peal of 6 bells cast in 1998 at the world-famous Whitechapel Bell Foundry of London. Next door, at St Michael's Parish Church, there will be tours of the church tower in which there are six much heavier bells all cast in 1757 by William Evans of Chepstow. There will be CCTV coverage to show these bells in action.

St Michael & All Angels, Waddesdon

In the late 19th century the settlement was extended by the Rothschild family to become an estate village alongside Waddesdon Manor, which is now a conservation area. The church dates back to 1190 with later additions and has many interesting features. The church tower was built in 1892 to replace an earlier structure and houses six steel bells. These are very unusual as although steel was a popular bell material in the late 19th century it proved to be unenduring and now only a handful of churches in the country retain steel bells. The tower is accessed via a spiral stone staircase, and will be open for visitors to climb to the ringing chamber.

Wybunbury Tower, Nantwich

Climb 96 feet to the top of the beautiful leaning tower all that is left of the 15th century Church of St Chad to take in the magnificent panoramic views of the South Cheshire countryside. Restored in 1997 through a £100,000 Heritage Lottery grant to restore the 6 bells, rewire the building and clean the stone and statues. A very fine spiral staircase was also fitted on the ground floor of the building to enable easier access to the bell room

St Marie's Cathedral, Norfolk Row, Sheffield

Join us to celebrate St Marie's European communities and heritage, and discover our fascinating history, stories and treasures. Find out more about the enormous contributions of European Catholics to St Marie's Cathedral: from Irish immigrants fleeing the potato famine through wealthy Italian patrons to Belgian war refugees. Get ready for amazing free bell-ringing demonstrations, exhibitions, themed tours, talks, trails, family craft activities, story-telling, language learning sessions and continental treats.

All Saints Church, North Baileygate, Pontefract

Climb the unique Double Helix Spiral Staircase, one of just two known types in the world. Hear about the Church's part in the Civil War and Magna Carta in Pontefract. See the model of the staircase and get hands-on with the bells.
